Subsiding of Floods in Southern California Reveals Vast Ruin and Desolation.

LOS ANGELES. February 23.—(Associated Press by Federal Wireless)—With the ceasing of the heavy rains which have poured over Southern California almost incessantly for the past week and the subsiding of the resultant floods, the six counties south of the Tehachapi yesterday began to prostate themselves through the vast expanse of water which have covered them, great areas showing themselves covered with thick layers of silt and rocks washed down by the floods, uprooted trees, portions of destroyed buildings, wrecks of fences, pieces of farm machinery, dead bodies of stock and poultry in countless numbers. Everywhere the eye meets with ruin, desolation and destruction. Not even a conjecture can be made of what the property loss and damage will be. The storm is easily the worst in the history of Southern California.

Because of the demoralization of railroad, telephone and telegraph communication practically the entire sonic part of the state is cut off from communication with the rest of the world. Only a few telephone and telegraph lines are working and they are constantly taxed to their limit. None of the railway companies is attempting to move trains. A number of trains are stranded at isolated points and it is undoubtedly that there is much suffering among the passengers. Though railroad, telegraph and telephone companies have rushed large repair crews into the field it will be several days before traffic will resume the normal.

Teams of hardship and suffering are filtering in from the mountain regions where hundreds of residents and travelers caught by the storm have been marooned for days without shelter and food in many instances. Autos loaded with food supplies have been sent out from here and San Diego into the mountains to relieve the suffering of the stranded and marooned.

SMOKED HUSBAND OUT.

WASHINGTON, Pennsylvania. February 23.—(Associated Press by Federal Wireless)—A wife's cigarette smoking in bed, is sufficient grounds for an objecting husband to desert and refuse to provide for her board and lodging. This was the ruling today of Justice J. F. Carmichael in discharging Daniel Fisher of Washington, who was arrested on charges of deserting and non-support, brought by his wife.

In his own defense Fisher said that his wife was accustomed to lie in bed and smoke cigarettes—a habit which he did not only tolerate but which he feared might lead to a fire in his home. # BASEBALL FANS WITNESS NERVE RACKING CONTESTS

(From Monday Advertiser.)

P. A. G's 6, Mania 3.

Some ball teams consider the seventh inning the luckiest of all, and according to the dope sheets more games have been won and lost in this round than in any other.

From the looks of things at Athletic Park yesterday afternoon, the seventh was a lucky inning for the Portuguese Athletic Club and a mighty unlucky one for the Maui team, for in that seventh inning the P. A. C's sent three runners to the rubber, and these, added to what they had, gave them the long end of a 6-to-3 game over the Valley Isle contingent.

As a ball game it was a dandy contest, and the P. A. C's showed a wonderful amount of the comeback quality. There was as much difference in the club's playing yesterday with that of the day before as there is between black and white.

Portuguese's man hit the ball at opposite times, gave his pitcher, Henry Johnson, enough support, and were in full swing from top of gong until the final man had gone out.

Manil played nice ball, too, but failed to hit in the pluses and to take advantage of an occasional opening which would have upset calculations of the P. A. C's and which would have netted a few more runs at that.
